Consisting of archival material (Super 8 footage, interviews, and images of Budapest), East Punk Memories is based on the testimony of twelve former punks.

At the end of the 1980s, they expressed their rage against the regime and awaited with hope a change to the system.

What has become of them twenty years later?

A resurgence of nationalism, unbridled capitalism, a confusion of political vision from both the left and the right... How do they experience the current crisis?
